Season of Creation - We continue to ponder the marvels of creation, from smiling daisies to the vast galaxies. Each galaxy has its cluster of stars (like our Sun) beyond counting. And God alone knows how many planets dot each galaxy. On Christmas Day 2021, the American Space Agency (NASA) launched the James Webb Space Telescope to study the earliest formed stars and to peer farther back into the universe's past than ever before. Webb himself oversaw the American drive to the Moon in the 1960's.

Today, this space telescope is already sending back images of galaxies and stars formed 11 - 13 billion years ago. Over time, it will give us clearer glimpses of the wonders of the universe gifted to us by God. "Glory to God, and peace on Earth."
